September 29th to October 2, 2022
Hybrid Conference

&
Remotely via Zoom

Descriptive psychology is a conceptual system developed by Dr. Peter G. Ossorio which consists of a set of mutually supportive concepts such as language, behavior, person, and world. This system provides access to all the facts and possible facts concerning persons and their behavior. As such, it has application to any of the endeavors involving persons and what persons do.

The Society for Descriptive Psychology is a community dedicated to advancing descriptive psychology. For over 40 years the society has gathered together to share presentations based on descriptive formulations and to further the work of Dr. Ossorio. Our annual conference is appropriate for mental health and addiction professionals, organizational psychologists and leaders, policy makers, educators and others whose work depends on a respectful understanding of persons as such. Information about prior conferences can be found on the society's website at www.SDP.org. The Society invites papers that use Descriptive concepts which illuminate concepts like emotions, humor, community, organizations, culture, pathology, psychotherapy and many more.

For consideration, please submit a proposal for review by April 14, 2022. The proposal should be approximately 500 words in length and include the author's name, contact information and institutional affiliation if any. Accepted papers will be presented as part of a 60 minute conference session that includes time for questions. We will try to qualify presentations for continuing education credit as well. Inquiries and submissions are to be made to:
